Relation Between our CDW's PHARMACY_CLASS and PHARMACY_SUBCLASS Columns

We show PHARMACY_SUBCLASSes for statins in our paper and mention PHARMACY_CLASS and THERAPEUTIC_CLASS. Here's a table that shows single-inheritance relationships from PHARMACY_CLASS to PHARMACY_SUBCLASSes with analgesics as an example.

PHARMACY_CLASS	PHARMACY_SUBCLASS	MEDICATIONs
Analgesics-nonnarcotic	Analgesic Combinations	1178
Analgesics-nonnarcotic	Analgesics Other	1610
Analgesics-nonnarcotic	Analgesics-Peptide Channel Blockers	11
Anti-rheumatic	Analgesics - Anti-inflammatory Combinations	68
Dermatological	Analgesics - Topical	382
Misc. genitourinary products	Urinary Analgesics	136
Otic	Otic Analgesics	27

Confidential Information in Single-Oatient MEDICATION Records

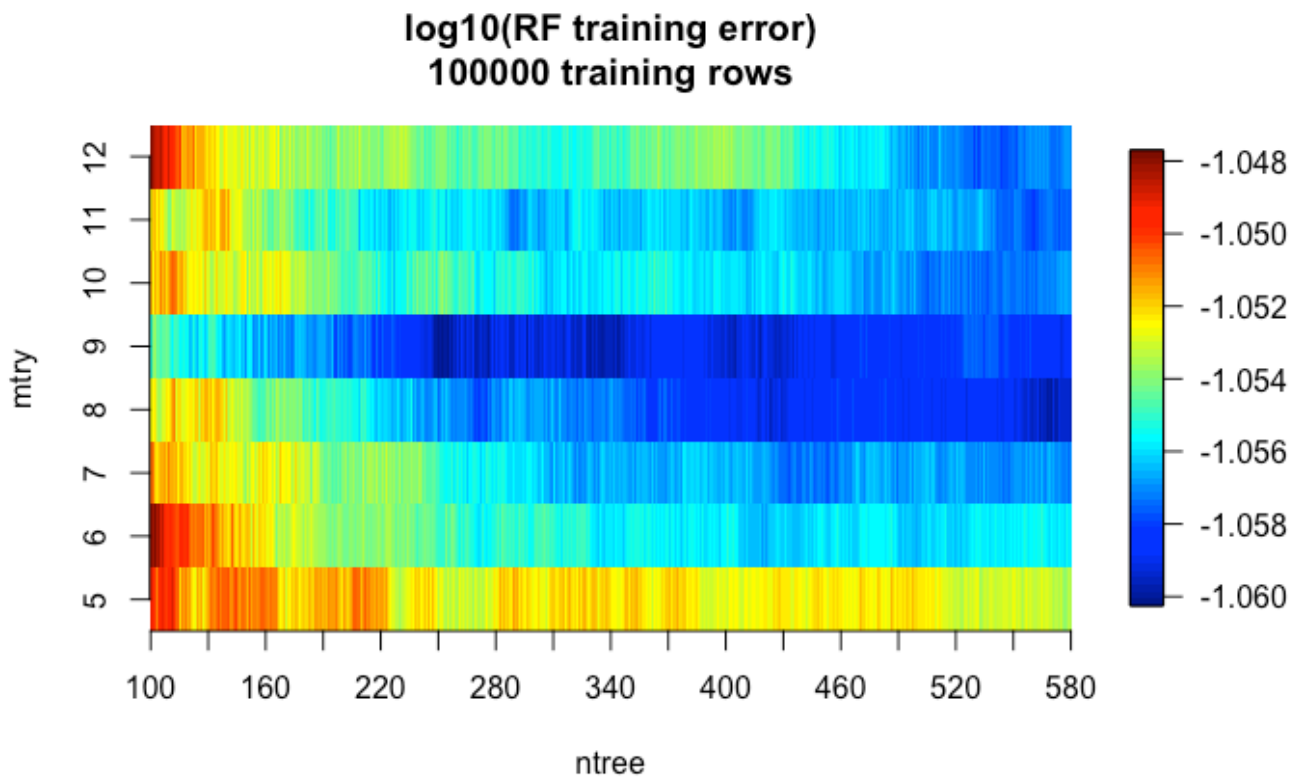

There are 1,464 MEDICATIONs in our CDW whose FULL_NAME contains the substring "william" and have been ordered for 0 or 1 patients, but 0 "william" orders that have been ordered for 2 or more patients. The same pattern holds for the substring "karen".

Factor Importance for Random Forest (RF) Training

RxNav's rank and score were both retained, along with the rxcui.count relevance measure. The RxCUI frequency and the counts and frequencies of the highly granular RxNorm atoms were dropped due to low importance and/or > 0.95 correlation with rxcui.count. The largely orthogonal qgram, jaccard, jw and cosine string similarities are retrained, but lcs and lv were not.

Tuning of TMM RF

Software Libraries Required for TMM's R Scripts

These may have further dependencies on other R libraries or even system software. Installing with R's `install.packages` function will generally resolve the R library dependency tree. `RJDBC` depends on `rJava`, which in turn requires Java to be installed on the system.

- `RJDBC`
- `ROCR`
- `caret`
- `config`
- `dplyr`
- `fields`
- `ggplot2` (optional)
- `httr`
- `jsonlite`
- `plyr`
- `randomForest`
- `rdflib`
- `readr`
- `solrium`
- `splitstackshape`
- `stringdist`
- `stringr`

- tibble
- tidyr
- uuid

Notes on Individual Scripts & Related Files

All of TMM's R scripts first source `rxnav_med_mapping_setup.R`, which reads `rxnav_med_mapping.yaml` into a list called `config`.

The training and prediction scripts require that RxNav-in-a-box is running and that `docker-compose.yml` has been modified to expose the MySQL/MariaDB port outside of the Docker environment, like this ports:

  - "3307:3306"

The RF model, created by `rxnav_med_mapping_proximity_training_no_tuning.R`, is saved as `rxnav_med_mapping_rf.Rdata`. The number of random medications submitted to RxNav, and then used for training, is set with `config$approximate.row.count` and should be set in the thousands. Bioinformaticians may find the process of searching RxNorm terms against other RxNorm terms, via RxNav, similar to all-vs-all BLASTs. The maximum number of search results returned (`maxEntries`) is currently set to 50 in two functions in `rxnav_med_mapping_setup.R`: `approximateTerm` and `bulk.approximateTerm`. These will become parameters in `rxnav_med_mapping.yaml` by the next release.

RxNav's `approximateTerm` REST endpoint returns RxNorm concept unique identifiers (CUIs), along with RxNorm atom unique identifiers (AUIs), and scores. The results are returned in score-ranked order. The RxAUIs are included because RxNorm aggregates drug names from multiple upstream sources. Each atom can have its own string value, but those are not included in the search results.

The TMM GitHub repository includes an RF tuning script, `rxnav_med_mapping_tuneup_followon.R`. It is included to show methods that can be used iteratively to tune the RF, in terms of factor correlation and importance, number of trees trained (`ntree`), and number of simultaneous predictors included in each tree (`mtry`). It is intended for use in an interactive environment like RStudio, not to be run from beginning to end from the command line. Tuning over a wide range of parameters with a large input set can take several hours.

`rxnav_med_mapping_proximity_classifier.R` performs the classification of medication strings from a CDW, etc. In order to load those results into a triplestore, the script saves them in a format compatible with ROBOT. `med_mapping_robot.sh` is provided to save the user from typing in the two long ROBOT commands that generate the RDF. At this point, the expected input and output file names are hard-coded into the shell script.

TMM scripts such as `rxnav_med_mapping_load_materialize_etc.R` will load public RDF files into the GraphDB repository, optimally from public web locations. Otherwise, users can pre-download those files to their local system and configure `my.import.urls` and `my.import.files` in `rxnav_med_mapping.yaml` accordingly.

The number of BioPortal mappings from `serialize_biportal_mappings.R` is much smaller than the number of classified search results from `rxnav_med_mapping_proximity_classifier.R`, so the RDF conversion is performed in `rxnav_med_mapping_load_materialize_etc.R`, instead of using ROBOT.

defined_by and employment

`rxnav_med_mapping_load_materialize_etc.R` also makes two kinds of convenience assertions, for use at query time:

- the `definedin` predicate is used to state which ontologies assert that a given term is an `owl:Class`. This determination is made possible by the fact that TMM loads each public ontology and RDF knowledgebase into its own named graph.
- the `employment` predicate is used to state the general way in which a term is useful to TMM.
 - The employment of each RxNorm term is identical to its RxNorm term type TTY).
 - `active_ingredient` is asserted for ChEBI and DrOn molecular entities and `product` is asserted for DrOn entities when there are patterns like this relation between the `product` 'Acetaminophen Oral Tablet', `DRON:00020450` and the active_ingredient 'Acetaminophen' or 'Paracetamol' `CHEBI:46195` : `has_proper_part some (scattered molecular aggregate and (is bearer of some active ingredient) and (has granular part some Acetaminophen))`
 - The employment of selected roles borne by ChEBI `active_ingredients`, transitively up to 'role', `CHEBI:50906`, is asserted as `curated_role`. The selected roles were bootstrapped by hand examining those that are common among the `active_ingredients` in `products` that are present in our CDW.
 - ChEBI classes that bear one of the `curated_role`s and have subClasses of their own, like 'statin', `CHEBI:87631` are assigned the employment `clinrel_structclass`, or clinically relevant structural classes.

Solr Query for Finding URLs in TMM, Representing Terms that are Meaningful to a Clinician or Researcher

http://<solr host:port>/solr/med_mapping_kb_labels_exp/select?
defType=edismax&q=hmg%20co%20reductase%20inhibitor&qf=medlabel%20tokens

Solr will likely return several matches, some additional application logic would be required to gather the user's choices. Logic like this is being present in the TURBO team's Carnival command-line tool and is being built into the TURBO/Carnival web interface.

SPARQL Queries from any term with an employment to medications in the CDW

These queries could start with a term obtained with Solr (see above). The SPARQL queries can be found in TMM's GitHub repository. Those queries may travers ChEBI and DrOn, but they report the CDW medications as RxNorm terms.
